BLAINE IN FIGHT AGAINST PLEDGE TO ENFORCE LAW

"No state, be it New York or Wisconsin, has the right to encourage the enemies of the federal constitution."

Governor Parker interrupted with the statement that the Ku Klux Klan was seeking to take charge of the constitution and Governor Blaine rose to a point of order to challenge Governor Neff on his statement regarding encouraging enemies of the constitution.

With several governors clamoring for the floor, Governor Baxter restored order only by vigorous pounding with the gavel.

Blaine Waxen, Warm, leaning over Governor Neff's chair and shaking his finger at him, Governor Blaine asked: "Will the governor please answer the question whether enforcement of the law is in proclamation or in action?"

"We must show the outlines that first there is the will of the officers to enforce the law," shouted Governor Neff, "and second, we must put them on the rock piles of our state prisons to compel them to do so."

Governor George S. Sizor of New Jersey joined the debate with the statement that New Jersey is no weaker than any other state.

"We are in favor of law enforcement," he continued, "but the will to enforce the law was not the end of the question in New Jersey."

The text of the resolution which is in the form of a memorial to President Coolidge follows:

"To the president, the White House, Washington, D. C. 'We, the undersigned, observance of law is the fundamental basis of American citizenship and enforcement of law is the primary duty of every official."

"National prohibition is now by constitutional amendment, the law of our land. An overwhelming majority of the citizens of the United States are law abiding and desirous of the enforcement of the same."

The national government alone has control of the manufacture of intoxicants and has a very special obligation to perform in prohibiting the importation into this country of wines and spirituous liquors contrary to the laws of the United States.

and in making effective the will of our people in regard to its enforcement. New conditions impose new responsibilities. People who violate one law will the more readily be guilty of violation of other laws.

"Therefore, the individual states should show the federal government the duty and responsibility of enforcing the 18th amendment."

"We pledge y. a. as governors, our fullest cooperation and effort."

Janesville Grid Team Praised by Rockford Coach

At a lively pep meeting in the high school Friday morning, a letter received from William O'Rourke, director of athletics at St. Thomas high school, Rockford, which was defeated here a week ago Saturday, complimenting the team upon their spirit and fairness, was read by Prin. W. W. Brown.

The letter reads:
"I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the very fine treatment which our boys received at Janesville. I have had my team in a number of the cities in the northern part of the state (Illinois), and in fact, all over the state, and I have yet to find a more manly crowd than I met at Janesville. There was not an ungenerous word or act on the field, and it is certainly a compliment to you. The one from principal down to janitor, seemed to make it his or her business to be kind."
"I do not hesitate to say that I am glad that the boys won the game on their own field. At any time you have an open date we shall be glad to play you. Of course, we would like to have a game to our gain, but the big thing is, after all, a right game and that is what you played. "Again I thank you in my own name and in the name of the team."

Ralph O'Connor, junior high school cheer leader, made his first appearance before the senior high Friday, when he assisted Ted Stead, cheer leader, with the yell. "Pentle" Johnson also took part.
Representatives of the football squad who spoke were Richard Condon, Charles Knipp, Capt. Joe Leary and Folsom, halfback.

As to the Naming of Streets.

While the city manager and council are getting ready for the placarding of streets would it not be well to consider the renaming of streets to avoid for all time the confusion which the names now bring? We have too many Bluff streets, and Court street for instance has three names in different sections. Fourth and Fifth avenues intersect. These are a few examples of the confusion which continues. Cleveland, Ohio, had a woeful situation for many years in street name duplication. In the face of popular disapproval the city renamed the streets. Now the citizens would not go back to the old system for any price. It will take a year or so to adjust the residents to the new names but our experience here will be the same as elsewhere when the proper action has been taken to avoid and minimize confusion in street nomenclature. The new signs can be erected at once and the streets be changed in name and number so as to be harmonious and mean something. Nor does it make any confusion about records based on old street names when a new plat with the revised list of names is on file.
Perhaps one way to reduce the number of dead on Sunday is to abolish Sunday.

The Case of James Oglethorpe.

James Oglethorpe, gentleman and soldier, looked over England and found, about 200 years ago, that some of the best men in the country were being imprisoned for debt. If a man could not pay what he owed he was thrown into prison and if relatives or friends did not obtain his release, there he remained for the rest of his life. James Oglethorpe, then a general of the British army, brought 120 of these debtors, released by act of parliament, over to America and settled them in a colony for which he had the king's papers and called the new place Georgia.
Nearly 200 years later the president of Oglethorpe University in Georgia conceived the idea of bringing back to America the bones of the dead Oglethorpe and entombing them here with a suitable monument which would embody the ideals of Georgia with the suggestion of her beginnings in political and geographical life. Immediately a hue and cry was raised in England over the so-called desecration. America wanted to take away her treasured bones of distinguished dead. Most of the objectors had never previously heard of Oglethorpe and his burial place was in doubt for some time. But Georgia said that it was quite wrong to assume any such position. It was better that the bones should come to the new land of hope established by the dead British general and the tie that bound the two nations would be closer with this attention given to the son of one country who was also the father of another great commonwealth. There was no arguing with the British and so out of deference to British opinion, after laboriously searching for the grave of the dead pioneer, the project has been abandoned. It may be that now the British will give some little attention to the long-neglected hero. But Georgia will mark the place in England with a fitting monument and make of the parish church where his body lies, a shrine for Georgians; providing the authorities will permit it. So has ended an episode which was potential for trouble. After all, what does it matter where the body lies after death? The real monument to Oglethorpe that will live forever is the state of Georgia itself, a territory almost as large as England.

Among other able observations of the Honorable Magnus is that we ought to immediately recognize the soviet government in Russia and that Germany has paid all she can pay in reparations, for, if she is forced to pay more, she will establish the soviet government which will drag all Europe into the soviet form with her. On one hand recognize a soviet, on the other do everything to stop the spread of the dangerous soviet. Great is statesmanship and how many crimes are committed in that name!

AMORSTIZING NATIONAL DEBT

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
Washington.—As the men and supplies of the United States came to the relief of the Allied armies in 1917, when it appeared that without aid those armies must bow before the German power, so now American ideas are coming forth to aid Europe out of the seemingly hopeless economic and financial tangle that was the heritage of the years of war. The treaty of Versailles sowed dragons teeth all over Europe and the harvest which is being reaped is one of national and economic disorganization. It has thrust Germany through a series of vicissitudes which have had almost as much horror as war itself but without any of the pomp and glory of armed conflict. It has left France in a state of national chaos and fever and has brought to Great Britain serious industrial depression and unemployment.
The keynote of the whole tragic situation has been debt. Inability to meet indebtedness has been the principal bane of the European nations. Their currencies have depreciated to fantastic figures with all the consequent derangement of trade. Where trade is deranged, industry languishes and without industry and new wealth cannot be produced. These sorrows have been caused by debt.
The overshadowing debt is that of Germany—the reparations. Whether they are too large or too small is a subject on which there are many shades of opinion. The outstanding fact is that the reparations constitute a debt which is holding European development back and thereby retarding the trade and disturbing the tranquility of the whole world. To solve the debt problem, therefore, is probably the most important task in the world today.
What now is being regarded by statesmen of various nations as the best suggestion for a solution is a plan which has been perfected by the American group of the International Trade Commission, under the general direction of Dr. Clarence J. Owens, Washington, D. C. The plan is based on the theory of amortization. It proposes to set in operation a system of payments whereby by gradual degrees the debt is paid off. The plan calls for a series of payments, approximately equal, shall be made, extending over a period of sixty-six years. Each payment would include principal and part interest, bringing about a progressive diminution of the total debt until it finally becomes extinguished.
When the British debt funding mission, headed by Stanley Baldwin, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, now Prime Minister of Great Britain, came to Washington last winter to arrange for the payment of the British debt to the United States, the amortization tables which the international trade commission had worked out were laid before him and also before Chairman Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury and Chairman of the American World War Debt Funding commission.
The tables excited the attention of these leaders of finance and of their colleagues on the commissions which they headed, and it appeared to be more than coincidence that when the terms of the settlement of the British debt were made public they revealed almost an exact duplication of plan along the lines followed by the Owens tables. By an initial payment of an odd amount, the debt was brought down to the round sum of $4,800,000,000. To this the amortization table was applied, stipulating annual payments to include a part of both principal and interest, extending over sixty-two years. The first annual payment amounted to $161,000,000. These payments approximate this amount, reaching a high point of about $137,000,000. At the end of sixty-two years the whole debt is paid.
The general arithmetical principle on which the table is worked out is that an annual payment of $45,000,000 will amortize a debt of $1,000,000,000 in sixty-six years. Seventy millions will amortize a debt of $2,000,000,000 and so on indefinitely in the same proportion. The interest rate is three per cent and one-half of one per cent is devoted to paying down the principal.
The total may be applied to any of the debts of the European allies and show what payments need be made. Applying the theory of the debts of the allies to the United States, it will be seen that the debt of Belgium which amounts to $350,000,000 could be paid in sixty-six years by annual installments of only $12,250,000. Italy's debt of $1,700,000,000 could be paid in the same time by annual installments of $55,500,000.
There has been much dispute about the French debt. France is the second largest debtor to the United States. Her indebtedness amounts to about $3,000,000,000. Her payment has been deferred owing to the fact that France has been under heavy expense in the Ruhr occupation. Many leaders in politics and finance say that it will not be possible for France to meet the obligation. So far, only preliminary negotiations for the settlement of the debt have been entered into between the American debt funding commission and the French government. When negotiations do begin, the international trade commission's amortization tables will be laid before the commissioners and, in all probability, will be adopted. The French debt could be extinguished in sixty-six years by annual payments of $105,000,000.
The other lesser debtors among the allies would find that proportionately smaller payments would take care of their obligations and settle them in the amortization period.
There never has been any agreement on just what Germany should pay in the way of reparations. John Maynard Keynes the British economist, declared that $10,000,000,000 was the utmost which could be squeezed out of Germany. The early negotiations at Versailles set up such figures as $50,000,000,000 as the proper sum. International conferences which have been held subsequently have set down amounts which Germany should be required to pay but no agreement has proved binding so far. The result is an average opinion of Germany's ability to pay which can be safely stated is the sum of $12,000,000,000. This would be more than the United States lent to all the allies put together during the war.
The amortization tables applied to a German reparations debt of $12,000,000,000 would show that if sixty-six years the whole debt could be discharged by annual payments of $420,000,000, reduce freight rates on grain and coal. The very request stiffened the grain prices and it is hoped the roads will see the way clear to quickly avail themselves of the opportunity to act independently of the inter-state commerce commission which, pressed by the president, may later demand the rates be lowered.
One of the curiosities of this section and a welcome sign would be a padlock on the door of South Janesville.
The Kenosha News complains that it has no theater worth the name and several hundred Kenoshans nightly go to Milwaukee to attend plays when they ought to be kept at home. We hope Janesville will have a new hotel by the time Kenosha gets a new theater.
Mr. Ekern is getting on the front pages daily now in training for the political derby he is to run in 1926.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.
HE'S NEVER BEEN SIXTEEN BEFORE
We marvel that he does such things
And is so keen to try his wings—
Blind youth that feels the thrill of joy,
With all the earnestness of a boy,
Who violates without concern
The precepts we were made to learn—
He should know better, should know more
Who never was sixteen before!
He was not here when we were young;
Dead is the past to which we've clung.
'Tis his to race the world today,
To live, to dream, to be, to play,
Sure as we were in his faded eyes,
But the world this hour appears
This boy, so different, at life's door,
Has never been sixteen before!
The vain to talk of wrongs and right
Which marked an age long taken flight.
Our youth to him is foreign land,
Its ways he cannot understand;
What life was once he cannot say,
He knows he must be young today.
He smiles at customs and traditions
Who never was sixteen before!
These manners which to us are grim
Are very natural to him;
Our time of youth is far away
And he is being young today.
To this great truth old age must bow:
Youth only knows what life is now.
A new world this, he must explore,
Who never was sixteen before!

Who's Who Today

LORD HEADLEY.
Lord Headley, the only British Moslem peer, has returned from his pilgrimage to Mecca, where for three weeks he was the honored guest of King Hussein of the Hedjaz, who welcomed him cordially as representing the British Moslems and with whom he was in constant touch during his entire stay.
Not only did King Hussein confer on his visitor the highest honor, the Order of the Hedjaz, but he was the King's guest at dinner and traveled with him.
Although one or two Englishmen have succeeded in getting to Mecca in Oriental disguise, this, so far as is known, is the first occasion on which a British subject has penetrated openly to the mysterious, the holiest center of the Mohammedan world. It was possibly because Lord Headley has long attended the weekly religious services conducted by the leading Mohammedan ecclesiastic in London and has raised money to build the only Mosque in Great Britain in memory of the Moslem soldiers who died under the British flag in the great war.
Lord Headley, who is sixty-eight years of age, owns about 10,000 acres in Ireland and has a seat in the House of Lords. He has seen considerable military service, having served through the Franco-German war on the staff of General Von Gumbert. He also took part in the Cavalry war. He is a vigorous man of affairs, a practicing engineer distinguished in his profession.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
THE COMMON HEADACHE
Migraine or periodic sick headache is bad; neuralgia and the dolorous and even worse in nature, but ordinary headache, which occurs from so many little irritations of the simple parts of health and right living, is a minor ailment, but it has been said, a more insidious, likely as not just a social ailment. People who willfully breathe foul air, when fresh air is available in unlimited quantities right outside the window, deserve a headache; very often they get it. People who endure leakage in gas fittings in the house or put up with gas stoves which have no connection with outside air, are entitled to the headache of which they commonly complain.
The ordinary headache is the kind a great many students of pathology have whoever their "elimination" is retarded. These credulous persons accept the "auto-intoxication" hypothesis as an established physiological fact, when you take fishy food so seriously you naturally worry a good deal over the state of your innards, and all that sort of thing, people who worry about constipation, a dull mean headache for themselves on slight provocation. The ordinary headache is often relieved almost instantly by the application of a cathartic of the bowels—which stops the worrying but of course could not stop the hypothetical auto-intoxication so suddenly.
There are chapters of very medical literature indeed which will give even a medical cynic at least the making of a headache. There are thousands of which they have been appressed, who suffer consequently from much headache and thousands of other women with displacements, nervousness, or have not even had a headache. Anxiety neurosis is attended with headache.
The dull, mean headache of the ordinary type does really clear up with a saline purge. This is more likely attributable to alteration of the pressure within the skull than to any withdrawal or removal of "toxins" and, indeed, a good dose of common table salt is one of the best of head-

A. Probably the first automatic telephone system for public use was installed in La Porte, Ind., by the Stowager Automatic Telephone exchange about 1923 or 1924. It was apparently a more or less experimental system based on patents issued to Almon B. Stowager in 1881. Stowager's theory was that the first board of this type was exhibited at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893.

The horsepower developed by its six engines is 1,800, and its total weight is composed of nine officers and 22 enlisted men.
Q. How many times would an atom have to be magnified in order to become visible? W. E. H.
A. It would have to be magnified a million diameters to be seen as an extended object; that is, it is about one-millionth the diameter of a small particle seen with the microscope.
Q. What was the first American novel? R. H.
A. The Independent Chronicle in the issue of Jan. 22, 1789, announced the publication of the first American novel, "The Power of Sympathy," by Eliza Follen, Westworth Melton, alias "Phyllis."

Horoscope

SATURDAY, OCT. 20, 1923
Sinister planetary influences rule today according to astrology. Saturn and Uranus are both in malefic aspect. It is a day that is not promising to workers, making for serious labor troubles.
The stars declare that mines will be the center of a strike that is of serious consequences.
Farmers may expect a continuation of their many problems. They are to suffer heavy losses that will arouse even greater anxiety than at any former time.
Uranus is in a place believed to cause a critical attitude of mind and to foment any sort of discontent.
Persons entrusted with public business will be targets of abuse and there will be many scandals in which government officials are concerned.
The aspect of Uranus gives little hope of a diminution of crime. Women and children will be victims of many sorts of offenses.
The people of the Earth will be more susceptible to mental malices than in all previous history. It is prophesied, and they should safeguard themselves.
There is a sign that is read as threatening to the conditions controlling the leather trade. Shoes and leather articles are likely to rise in price.
Economy can not be too strongly stressed at this time, astrologers declare. Wise men and women will simplify their lives.
Real estate is not under the best direction of the stars today. In certain cities booms will collapse, but only for a time.
Persons whose birthdate it is should not make any important changes. The young, however, probably will be fortunate in marriage this year.
Children born on the 20th may be too fond of travel and pleasure. These subjects of Libra and Scorpio, who are on the cusp, usually have many ups and downs in life.

Palmer, Out After 20 Years' Work—Gives Hints on Bettering Service.

"After 20 years of service as captain on rural route number 3, I would like to tell you how much I value the rural routes in general and those on route 3 in particular, giving a few of my many experiences and offering a group of suggestions for the patrons and my brother carriers to make the service more efficient and pleasant," says Mr. Palmer.

"In the first place, I would like to say that I have great gratitude to my patrons for the many expressions of appreciation of my humble service to them and the P. O. department. I would like to tell you that I return the most of the people have shown in various ways that they sincerely believe it. I can remember only one time when I was not appreciated by a patron. The patron was a young one or more presents, backed u through. Many days I have had to ride from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. and back again. I have even ridden 100 miles. Once I tired my horse out and had to lead her for the last two or three miles. That is not as pleasant as a night's rest. The odometer on my car's odometer is below zero all day long.

Postpones Addition Needed

"Another thing that ought to be thought of is the increase of the workload to be done by the postpartum horse. When I began, 20 years ago, I handled less than 3,000 pieces per month. Now I have about 12,000 pieces per month. That was 20 years ago that weighed over four pounds. Now the limit is 70 pounds. We carry everything from an automobile to a horse trailer. That's a lot of weight. That fall, 1990, we moved into the in the box. Fill out your application blank for money orders and give it to the cashier. He will give you a receipt. The cashier will take the money and pay the tramp to take, and then you lay the blame on your carrier for the loss.

"I'm good to your carrier and remember that he is human and liable to make mistakes, and if he does, just tell him about it and don't bother the postmaster with your complaints. He will be glad to hear from you."

"Next Monday, Oct. 22, will be my last day for Uncle Sam. I shall miss the work but will have many very good friends to help me. I shall have tried to do my share in helping to educate the 20 millions of people in the U. S. and I hope the postal service will become still better and better every day."

WOMEN SOLICITORS
WANTED FOR FRAUD

Exploited.—Local police are seeking members of an apparently organized band of women swindlers who have taken advantage of the Salvation Army fund drive now in progress here to canvass the city for funds under the guise of solicitors for the Salvation army. Every part of the city has been visited by the swindlers, some working in pairs and some single handed. Large sums of money are said to have been obtained.

The pseudo solicitors were brought to the attention of police late Wednesday by a woman who reported that after she had given two women a contribution they forced their way into her home, sat down, and proceeded to drink out of a bottle. Investigation showed the fraudulent campaign workers were operating in every part of the city, the description by their victims revealing at least a dozen.

LYLOYD GEORGE AT TOMB OF LINCOLN

Pays Reverent Homage to "One of the World's Greatest Men."

Springfield, Ill.—Abraham Lincoln came here Thursday and paid homage to the memory of David Lloyd George. With bare head, headless of a cold, driving rain, the wartime premier of Great Britain, approached the monument and entered the tomb of the martyred president, where he placed on the sarcophagus a wreath with his card bearing the words:

"A humble and reverent homage to the memory of one of the world's greatest men."

Accompanying him were Dame Margaret and Miss Megan Lloyd George, as well as members of the official reception committee.

Standing with head slightly bowed below the sarcophagus and for a moment in deep reverie, the man who also has known the pressure of great responsibilities in time of war, said audibly, as if speaking to himself rather than those about him:

"He is the greatest man grown upon the American continent. He is growing, too—oh, yes, he grows."

"I've just been reading about the time he had. I read of the most recent ones about two years ago. It was rather an account of the troubles he had in the war with Germany and politicians. They were worse than mine."

The wreath was placed on the top side of the sarcophagus just above one standing in front and placed there several months ago by President Coolidge when he was vice president.

Before going to the tomb, Mr. Lloyd George visited the Lincoln home near the center of the city. Evidencing the greatest interest in all matters concerning the great president whom he has regarded as an idol since boyhood, the former premier went through the different rooms and examined all articles with minute attention to all details. In the room where Mr. Lincoln was notified of his election as president, the distinguished visitor paused and remarked to Dame Margaret and others: "This is the room where he heard that he had been elected."

Courage Is Praised
Lloyd George was shown about the house by Mrs. Mary Edwards Brown, a grandniece of Mrs. Lincoln, and signed the register and inspected a number of interesting articles connected with Mr. Lincoln's life, before entering the tomb.

Lloyd George was officially welcomed to the state Thursday night by Gov. Small at a public dinner in the Leland hotel. Speaking of the distinguished visitor, the governor said that "this has been a courageous life of service to his country and to his fellow men, as was that of our martyred president."

In his talk, Mr. Lloyd George paid high tribute to the example of the emancipator. The former premier of the day was a guest of the city of St. Louis, Missouri.

HENRY MAY STREW AIR WITH FLIVVERS

Farmland, N. Y.—Henry Ford, who sprinkled the earth with flivvers, has ideas that may fill the air with them. The theories on the future of the "air flivver," as heard by Lawrence Sperry, American father of the flying flivver, were reported by Mr. Sperry on his return from a 2,000-mile trip in his tiny plane, the Vesuvius, with a wing spread of a few feet.

A month ago Mr. Sperry left Farmington and visited Washington, Dayton and St. Louis. On the return journey he stopped at Detroit for a couple of gallons of gasoline, and while there was invited to talk to Mr. Ford. Mr. Sperry said Mr. Ford was impressed by the fact that a flying flivver could go further on a gallon of gasoline than an earth flivver.

The city boy, Mr. Ford thought, was quicker to accept a new idea than the country boy, as proved by the country boy's reluctance to give up the plow horse for the tractor. So Mr. Ford thought Mr. Sperry should try to sell his planes to city boys.

The three-cylinder, air-cooled motor with which the Sperry flivver is equipped interested Mr. Ford and he viewed it, Mr. Sperry said, from a standpoint of quantity.

DIVISION ENGINEERS.
MEETING WITH FIRST
Madison—Division engineers of the Wisconsin highway department are meeting this week with A. K. Hirst, chief highway engineer, to consider technical problems involved in road construction, and to have the road situation in the state for the next year set before them.

A marked curtailment of road building in Wisconsin is in prospect for 1924, with the lapse of much county bond issue construction, and the lower state expenditure.

New highway problems are said to arise from the present state of affairs, which the division engineers are being acquainted with.

FINAL DECISION ON ROADS WILL BE MADE NEXT WEEK
Madison—Final determination of Wisconsin roads which are to be added to the state trunk highway system will be made by the special legislative investigating committee appointed to designate the new highways, when that body meets Tuesday, Oct. 23.

The more difficult problems involved in locating 2,500 additional miles of state trunk roads have been settled by the legislative committee and A. K. Hirst, state chief engineer. Before announcement of the committee determinations, however, a few remaining questions are to be settled.

When the added mileage is linked up with the state trunk highway system, Wisconsin will have 10,000 miles of state roads.

Marking of the new system is expected to be commenced shortly after the committee decisions are made.

ARMY-NAVY AERIAL PROGRAM PLANNED
[By Associated Press]
Washington—Adoption of a joint army-navy air service development program to be completed in 10 years is recommended in the report of a special board of the army, made public today. Unless measures are taken immediately to provide for the rebuilding of the air service and the airplane industry, the report said, the army air service will have been "practically demobilized and the American air craft industry virtually disappeared within a few years."

The board recommended that the army air service program be framed to provide for the expenditure of approximately $200,000,000 during the 10-year development period.

The board found that an alarming condition existed in the army service due to shortage of flying personnel and equipment and to the failure of the aircraft industry to develop commercially. The industry, the board said, was solely dependent on government orders which had been limited due to lack of appropriations and the fact that airplanes manufactured during the war were being used up.

CRIMINAL PLEADS FOR CORRECTION

Man Held in Jefferson Jail Fears for Life if He Is Called a "Dick."

John A. Stone, professional criminal in his own admission, is afraid that he will get into trouble if the news reaches the underworld that he has been called a "dick" by a police officer on a railroad or in a Jefferson county jail waiting trial on the charge of receiving stolen goods. It was said that he had been called a "dick" by a police officer on a railroad or in a Jefferson county jail waiting trial on the charge of receiving stolen goods. It was said that he had been called a "dick" by a police officer on a railroad or in a Jefferson county jail waiting trial on the charge of receiving stolen goods.

But if the brethren of the underworld know he has ever been a "dick" which in the language of the criminal world is a name that may be used to pass in his checks suddenly.

This is the letter John A. Stone writes to the Gazette:

The writer, whose name is John A. Stone, awaiting trial at the county jail here on a charge of receiving stolen property would like to explain.

In the combined issue of your Saturday and Sunday paper of Oct. 13-14—in the court column of the Jefferson news one paragraph reads: "John A. Stone, who refers to me as being at one time a detective for the Milwaukee road; that is absolutely wrong as at no time was I ever a detective for the Milwaukee road."

However, I did work for the said company, but not as a detective. A railroad detective is a police officer with police authority. The R. F. C. company also furnishes him with transportation over their lines. They also require him to carry and furnish him with means of identification. The R. F. C. company never gave me police authority, never furnished me with transportation on their lines or gave me any means of identification, so naturally, I was not a detective for the Milwaukee road. That article does me a great injury and I would ask you to retract it or correct it in some way.

I am not and never have been a detective for the Milwaukee road. I have served five terms at the Wisconsin penitentiary at Waupun, a victim of circumstance, having served in all about 10 years. My acquaintance there with thieves of all description is very large. Several issues of your Sunday paper reaches the prison. These men see this article and pass it around and it becomes known that Stone is a "dick." These men have no regard for life or property. They come and go daily. And I would be killed. And I ask you to retract that article as it is wrong. I am not and never have been a detective for the Milwaukee road.

I trust you understand this and take it in the right light and that you will make corrections.

JOHN A. STONE.
Jefferson, Wis.

TAXES WILL BE THE MAJOR ISSUE BEFORE CONGRESS

The treasury could stand a tax reduction but opposes it at this time on the ground that a flood of changes will be suggested and the whole problem reopened. Memories of the last fight on the tax bill when the conservatives had a hard time getting the excess profits taxes repealed, are still fresh.

Mr. Smoot also knows that a soldier bonus bill will be proposed.

Mellon on Surtaxes
Secretary Mellon of the treasury department wants surtaxes reduced and certain other changes made that will stimulate business and the general prosperity of the nation. Mr. Smoot thinks that if any tax revision is made it should be a cut in revenue.

This is obviously the strategy of good politics and was the guiding principle in the last revision of the revenue laws that was made by Chairman Madden of the house appropriation committee, favors tax reduction. He has been making a study of the whole situation and thinks the treasury can stand a cut in revenue.

His judgment will count a great deal both in the house and with President Coolidge.

Where Real Power Lies
But the situation is not entirely in the hands of President Coolidge or the leaders of the house and senate who are supporting him. It is controlled largely by the "radicals" and members of the farm bloc. They will not hesitate to open up the whole tax matter. The big question is whether the administration, by seizing the inevitable, will get the jump on its natural political opponents and propose a program of tax revision which cannot be varied materially.

To propose a reduction of taxes will incidentally have the effect of stockpiling for a time at least the bonus question, if indeed the bonus supporters revive the kind of bill they had last time. An effort will be made by the administration to put through a bonus bill that takes into account some of the various plans suggested last year but which does not require so heavy a drain on the cash of the treasury at this time.

Politically it will be interesting to watch the evolution of the tax program alongside the bonus measure. If the latter means a large expenditure, tax revision will not be possible. So while the democrats themselves will provide enough votes to pass a bonus bill and even make it a law over a presidential veto, if Mr. Coolidge should be against it, which is doubtful, the republicans will be the ones embarrassed if the passage of a bonus bill kills tax revision.

Issue to the Lower Taxes
The democratic campaign cry will be "Reduce Taxes" and opponents of republican members of the house and senate will find that issue raised largely because the impression has been sent broadcast by administration spokesmen, that the passage of taxes should be reduced.

Which will furnish more votes—the bonus or tax revision? Statistics from the internal revenue office show that the taxes of the nation are paid by more individuals than would receive the bonus, but the difference is that the bonus supporters are organized and the taxpayers are not, and also not a few of the taxpayers themselves would be recipients of the bonus. Very few members of congress will dare to oppose the bonus in the coming session and the general impression prevails here that unless President Coolidge takes a determined stand the bill as good as passed now.

Smoot's Position
This is believed to be one reason why Senator Smoot is trying to discourage talk of tax revision, while Secretary Mellon, who is against the bonus, is tempting the general public with a tax revision program.

President Coolidge is determined to make a record on economy. He is said to be getting ready to present to the December session of congress a comprehensive plan for reduction of expenditures, and there are rumors that he will urge in general terms a reduction of taxes and will include also a bonus proposal that doesn't cost the government as much money as previous bonus measures.

Whatever position is taken by the president, there is bound to be a demand from the "radicals" for further tax cuts and this will give the political opponents of the administration, both in the campaign before and after the national conventions, opportunities for trouble making. Taxes will be a major issue.

FRIENDSHIP

So Webster Says, is Mutual Attachment

There are few of us in this day and age whose interests are not primarily the same. There are fewer of us who do not form friendship on things mutually interesting. Then mutual attachment is the result of mutual interest.

Now, I claim to be your best friend because it is my business to make friends for you by creating mutual interest. I am the Want Ad. I take your want from house to house until I find some person anxiously waiting for your message.

I am clipped out of the paper and the information I give results in a hurried phone call to you by my anxious reader.

Sometimes I sell clothes, furniture, food, fuel or rent a house, an apartment or hire servants, find the owner of a lost article, and even show you how to earn money in your idle moments.

There is always someone who has what you want or wants what you have and I (the little want ad) will get you in touch with that someone.

PHONE ME—2500

Mary Brown will word me so that I can produce results at once.

Screen Talk

Bert Lytell is playing a few weeks in vaudeville just now before sailing for Europe and Algiers. He is appearing on the Keith circuit in a sketch, "The Valet."

He had a little visit with him at his hotel the other day and found him just what you expect from seeing him in pictures—a handsome and courteous gentleman. Serious, too. One certainly gets the idea from talking with these famous stage people that their life is not all "beer and skittles."

Lytell told me that he comes of stage people—his great grandfather and father—if I mistake not.

—were all gentlemen of the stage, so that it was the most natural thing in the world for him to follow in their steps. He first appeared at the early age of five years, then was busy attending school and at seventeen made his second debut.

For a person who comes of a theatrical family, it is just as natural to take to the stage for a career," says Mr. Lytell, "as for the man whose father is in the army. He knows it is a life of probable poverty and hard work but it is work he loves and no other will do."

Mr. Lytell is very enthusiastic about his new picture, filmed abroad, an adaptation of Iliad Calne's "The Eternal City" for First National. Barbara La Marr is the leading woman. The scenes were taken largely in Rome, Premier Mussolini lending the company every co-operation.

Some of the scenes were taken in the Coliseum at Rome and members of the Fascisti, 20,000 strong, responded to the Premier's call and appeared in the picture.

FRANK SHANNON'S NEW PART

Elmer Shannon has just completed the leading role in Peckard's "Maytime." Four distinct characterizations were required of her, from childhood to old age. It is whispered that while dressed for a twelve year old girl, her own age, she became enamored of her and invited her to his party with "the rest of the kids." So that as it may, she is now engaged to play the lead in "The Boomerang," David Belasco's comedy drama.

"CHU CHIN CHOW"

Betty Blythe, who has recently made two pictures abroad, including "Chu Chin Chow," has received an offer to return to Europe to make a picture but has decided to stay in this country and is considering two big offers. "Chu Chin Chow" will have its New York opening sometime in November.

GEORGE HACKATHORNE'S NEW ONE

George Hackathorne, whose work as the hunchback in Universal's "Merry Go Round," gained him much favorable notice, is busy at work on his new picture, "The Turn of Mind." This picture will be one of Universal's jewels and is being directed by Hobart Henley.

Additional Fine Money Goes to City by New Plan

Due to a desire of the city manager to increase the revenues of the city and not have so much of the court money go to the state and county, speckers and other traffic violators in the future will be prosecuted so far as is possible on city charges. City Attorney Roger G. Cunningham said Thursday.

In this way all of the money paid as fines in such cases will go into the city treasury, whereas in the past many speckers arrested in the city have been fined under a state complaint. As a result the city got only one-third of the fine.

Monday and Thursday have been set aside for handling such cases, following a conference between the manager, municipal court judge, police department and city attorney.

It is probable that a new ordinance will be drawn up to make drunkenness cases so that they may be prosecuted by the city, and the fines of these victims may then go into the municipal coffers.

If the Business Man Worked in the Kitchen—
Did you ever watch a business man do his work in his kitchen? Would he do it with his hands, his feet, his telephone and dictaphone? No, of course not.

The McDougall Kitchen Cabinet cuts down your kitchen work and improves your efficiency much more than his office equipment helps the business man. You can't afford to do without McDougall. You owe it to your family to conserve your strength.

He Would Have a McDougall

Here is the test, just let father get the meals for one day. Watch him take back and forth from party to party to ice-box to cupboard to sink, dozens of times in the preparation of the most simple meal. He will suggest that you centralize your kitchen equipment and save all this unnecessary running around. He would say, "Go down to Wolf's and get a McDougall."
